

The individual-tree index series for the YAD site produced as fractional deviations from a single “all-site” (i.e. YamaLAll) RCS curve. Note that not all trees show the same relative increase in growth in the late 20th century that is characteristic of the data set as a whole.